

KENTUCKY IN-SCHOOL TRANSITION SURVEY: 2010 REPORT

KISTS

The Kentucky In-School Transition Survey (KISTS) helps you look at how students with disabilities prepare for the important transition from high school to adult life. The KISTS has two parts; the Record Review, done by district staff, and the Student Survey, done by each student as they exit high school.

To protect student confidentiality, the KISTS uses State Student Identification numbers (SSIDs), instead of names. We match the two parts of the KISTS using the SSID. If the SSID is incorrectly entered for the Record Review or the Student Survey, there is no way to match the two parts. Because of this, you will see three types of responses on the "Data Sources" chart: "Matched", "Record Review only", and "Student Survey only". The number of potential KISTS should equal the exit data for your Special Education Cooperative; the best estimate from this survey is the total number of Record Reviews (the number of "Matched" responses plus the number of "Record Review only" responses).

SAMPLE SIZES

We have tried to put a note on each chart showing the actual number of people ("n") in the sample for that question. For example, everyone who did the Student Survey is asked if they are involved in extra-curricular activities, but only those who answered "No" are asked why they are not involved. While regional data offers larger sample sizes, subcategories can sometimes have smaller numbers; when sample sizes are small, even summary charts can give away confidential information to people in your community. Please do not show sample sizes of ten or less for any public presentations.

Small numbers also mean that small differences can make big percentage changes; take the sample size into consideration when you interpret your data.

RAW DATA

To avoid software compatibility issues, we are sending this report to you as a PDF file. The raw data (rows and columns) for these charts could not be converted into this format.
